Oh, Grave! Where Is Thy Victory? Oh, Death! Where Is Thy Sting?

If Gen. Sherman had ever seen those Western girls over whose cheeks the sunsets of the Golden Gate have shed an unfading glow he never would have said what he did say about war. He would have said that the powder of the face is the powder of the soul.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS.

By DOROTHY DIX. The World's Highest Paid Woman Writer.

Of course you individually do not need to turn over any new leaf at the beginning of the new year. You don't claim to be perfect. You may have a few little weaknesses—if you want to call personal characteristics weaknesses—but nothing that anyone could object to who isn't a grouch, a crank and overly critical, and Heaven knows you're a million times too good for the people with whom you have to live!

So there's really no reason for you to make any New Year's resolutions to live a better life the coming year, but there are lots of people who could be benefited by wiping off the slate and taking a fresh start. Don't you wish, for instance—

That your husband would resolve: To take as much interest in his home during the coming year as he does in his business?

To treat you with as much consideration and politeness as he does his best customer?

To watch what his children are doing and thinking as closely as he does what his clerks are doing and thinking?

Don't you wish that your husband would resolve not to take out on his family all the nerves, irritability and general cussedness that he is afraid and ashamed to show to the outside world?

That he wouldn't say things to you that he wouldn't dare say to any woman who had an able-bodied brother, or to his cook or stenographer, or who could give notice and leave?

That he wouldn't take everything you do for him as a matter of course and without so much as a thank you; that he wouldn't row over bills every minute and act as if you had eaten every particle of the food that came into the house, and worn all the clothes, and monopolized all the light and heat, and occupied all the furniture?

Don't you wish that your husband would resolve that during the coming year he would help you to make a happy home by being cheerful in it and interested in it—by being human instead of just a check book, or a tyrant before whom the whole household trembled?

That he would resolve to pay you three hundred and sixty-five compliments, each one of which would make a happy day for you.

That he would resolve to get acquainted with his children and win their confidence so that he might give them the help and guidance that they need so sorely and that only a wise and loving father can give to his children.

Don't you wish that your wife would resolve: To be a better housekeeper and to bring every bit of intelligence that she's got to running her home scientifically and efficiently.

To devote more time and attention to the kitchen and less to bridge.

To make herself look as attractive at breakfast when there's nobody but the family present as she does at dinner when there's company.

Don't you wish that your wife would make and keep a cast iron New Year's resolution:

Not to drag you around to parties when you come home half dead from a hard day's work.

Not to spend money as if it grew on trees.

Not to fret and complain because she can't dress like a millionaire.

Not to nag and threaten over the same old grievance a million times.

Her delicious good-looking coat of electric blue velvet and kolinsky had been left in the closet for weeks.

Not to let you see that she admires you and thinks she got a prize in a husband.

To act like a rational human being instead of a spoiled baby.

Not to let you wish that you would resolve: To keep their fingers out of your life during the ensuing year.

Sunday Theater Openings

Gaiety—New Bon Ton Girls. Something new in the way of burlesque which presents many novelties is the offering of the "New Bon Ton Girls" company which opened at the Gaiety Theater yesterday to two packed houses. Headed by the talented young comedienne, Lester Allen, the "New Bon Ton" company exhibits a mirth provoking travesty of moving picture studio life which meets with approval of the followers of the burlesque wheel.

The program consisted of six reels instead of six scenes, while each of the characters in the production impersonates some notable in the land of films, such as Charlie Chaplin, Skippy Arbutnot, Maurice Costello, Mummy Piffert, Ralph Inch, Francis Cushman and Pearl Kite.

Lester Allen and Johnny Barry furnish plenty of the punch stuff for this moving picture farce and are ably assisted by Joe Opp, Jean Wakefield, Ileana Chesleigh, Maude Clark, Anthony Cortell and Roderic.

Specialties were introduced during the performance while the song hits, "They Go Wild Over Me," "Possum Pie," and "Off to Honeyland" were handed rounds of applause.

The chorus was one of the most peppery and talented that has been seen here this season.

Loew's Columbia—Douglas Fairbanks. Douglas Fairbanks in his latest rapid-fire photoplay, "A Modern Musketeer," was shown to capacity audiences at Loew's Columbia yesterday and will remain all this week. Fairbanks holds up the mirror of the past to the present day.

The acrobatic player interprets the role of Ned Thacker, of Kansas, a young man who inherits the spirit of D'Artagnan through prenatal influence, his mother having been an ardent reader of Dumas.

The self-reliance of the modern woman, as compared with her sister in past generations is strikingly shown, for in many cases the chivalry of the modern D'Artagnan is mistaken and his gallant attempts to assist ladies in distress lead to rebuffs from the independent maidens who are on the alert to squelch flirtatious ploys.

Ned finally meets his fate in the person of Dorothy Morane, a tourist, played by Majorie Daw, and in a dash of super-heroism done in a twinkling of an eye, saves the girl from miserable fate and wins a bride.

"A Modern Musketeer" is one of the best productions in which the actor has appeared. He is supported by a notable cast, which includes Frank Campbell, Tully Marshall and other favorites.

Many of the scenes were filmed in the Grand Canyon and are wonderfully beautiful.

A Hearst-Pathé News and other reels were also shown.

DO YOUR SCOLDING BY PHONOGRAPH

A Washington woman has developed the very latest in scolding—husband-lecturing and boy-scolding. And as the scheme isn't patented it may be used by other wives and mothers, thus conserving enough words each day to make a dictionary. Besides, it saves the wear and tear upon one's nerves.

This Connecticut woman has a phonograph, a husband and a 10-year-old boy in her home.

The boy is a mischievous fellow on the runs, forgets to lock the door before retiring, and neglects the furnace.

The boy carries mud into the house, forgets to put his toy away and does all the other things boys do which she shouldn't do.

For all these and son got their call-downs from mother. But it didn't seem to do much good. Every day or so she had to read the riot act to them. Then she thought of the phonograph. And she went right down town and had two records made.

When sonny came in that evening mother put on one record and let him get an earful of it. He heard his mother's voice telling him what was what and don't do this and don't do that. All the while mother was resting and reading the riot act to them. Then she thought of the phonograph. And she went right down town and had two records made.

The boy looked surprised. He was rattling off his wife's regular spiel about locking the door, putting out the cat and checking the furnace fire—and in her own words, too, and she was calmly snoozing upstairs.

Rev. S. C. Lang Here on Visit. Rev. Stephen C. Lang, pastor of the Washington Street Congregational Church, of Quincy, Mass., assisted Rev. James L. Gordon at both services Sunday in the First Congregational Church.

Rev. Lang may be expected to come here and take the place as his associate vacated by Rev. Coe when the latter accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Congregational Church, of Dover, N. H.

KAISER'S PALSIED ARM SETS WORLD AT WAR

Dr. Gordon Tells of War Lord's Hatred of Mother and Humanity.

Taking as his text the inscription on the headstone of Dwight L. Moody, "He that doeth the will of God abideth forever," from I John, 11:17, Rev. James L. Gordon, pastor of the First Congregational Church, last night preached to a large audience on the subject of "The Kaiser and His Withered Arm."

Practically all of the sins of the present world war were laid at the door of the German ruler's unreasonable and stubborn will.

Born a king, declared Dr. Gordon, not since the days of Napoleon has any man so captivated the imagination of the world as the Kaiser, whose egotism was appalling.

Whenever the Kaiser sits for a photograph, said Dr. Gordon, he keeps his withered arm out of sight. Because of this deformity the German ruler has entertained hatred for his mother, whom he blames for his physical defect, the speaker said.

Pride, conceit, vaulting ambition, nervousness, cruelty and self-worship were a few of the counts in Dr. Gordon's indictment of the Kaiser, whose hatred for humanity he ascribed to envied admiration for a physical perfection denied himself.

The Kaiser's grudge against his English mother, said Dr. Gordon, was because she dropped him from her saddle when he was but two years old and maimed him.

According to Dr. Gordon, the Turk is the only friend in the world the Kaiser has left.

SHE SELLS CHICKS.

Since the middle of last January Mrs. Kate Tudor and her daughters, Fannie and Winnie, living on a residence street in Topeka, have sold more than 20,000 baby chickens, hatched from twenty incubators.

The chicks were sold to chicken raisers in a dozen different States. Every week during the spring and summer, they shipped an average of 800 to 900 chickens, and had their producing capacity been twice as large they could have placed every chicken hatched.

Mrs. Tudor, who resides in the basement of her home, keeping the incubators going week in and week out during the hatching season. She purchases the eggs, hatches them and ships the chicks to the States. They are a day old. Therefore she never has many on hand at one time. The demand for her chicks has grown until she receives orders of orders weekly which she is unable to fill. Previous to moving to Topeka, two years ago, the family lived on a farm near Osage City. They had been raising chickens in a small way for six years. The idea of going into the wholesale business occurred to Mrs. Tudor. With her daughters she moved to Topeka in order to have better shipping facilities. By specializing in the hatching of chicks, she was able to supply the business houses.

Rhode Island Reds, Plymouth Rocks and White Leghorns are the three breeds hatched. "Chicken fanciers in and near Topeka supply the eggs. The chickens are 'crated' in corrugated cardboard boxes, holding from twenty-five to 100, or even larger, one. The order is an especially large one. The chicks are divided into compartments, holding from ten to seventeen chicks. After filling the boxes with their chirping cargoes, they are entrusted to the tender mercies of the express companies. Few die en route to their destination. A flat rate of 10 cents each is received for the newly hatched chickens, which are shipped almost as soon as they are removed from the shells.

Next year the capacity of the hatchery will be increased to meet the extra demand created by the quality of stock produced by the Tudors. Plans are already being formed for installing at least one incubator of 1,200-egg capacity. Those now in use are smaller, ranging from 100 to 500 capacity—Capper's Weekly.

IS RUSSIA'S ART SAFE?

Chaos has now apparently descended upon the Russian capital, and the outside world can only hope that some one in that unhappy center of revolution and disorganization has seen to it that the hundreds of masterpieces in the national collection shall be placed in a comparatively safe hiding place until the storms of war are over.

A brief summary of the facts given in the preface to the three-volume French catalogue of the Hermitage (Petrograd's great art gallery) will suffice to convey some idea of the wonderful riches of this collection. At the same time, this catalogue was published the gallery contained 1,644 paintings, of which 831 belonged to the Imperial school, 117 to the Spanish school, 99 to the Germanic schools.

Confessions of a Wife

THE TASK OF BEING A WIFE.

"Tell me about your boy, Annie," I said to Tim Lafferty's wife that morning. "Is he well?"

"He is the finest boy in town, but he's the greatest trouble to me, is my buddy," interrupted Margaret Ann.

In spite of her mother's warning glance she went on. "He isn't very polite, Aunt Margie, and he eats too fast, especially candy. When any one gives us candy he eats his up twice as fast as I eat mine and then he creeps over in front of me and looks so wistful that I have to give him at least half of mine. Aunt Margie, I think he is going to be a glutton."

I laughed. Margaret Ann is a dear child, little book, and oh, how I wish she was mine. After she had gone out to play on the lawn, Annie said, "Dear Miss Margaret, I am happy to see you looking so well, but I saw Mr. Waverly this morning and I think I have met him. After he had come to see me this morning and I looked as well as he should."

"Well, you see, Annie, he was up late last night."

"Well, my dear Miss Margaret, I think you had better take good care of your husband."

"Nothing at all, Miss Margaret, except that he looks to me as though he needed all the care you can possibly give him in order to keep him fit."

Little book, little book, am I a selfish self-centered person? Should I pay more attention to Dick? I try to be good to him always and I think I have made him comfortable and happy. We never have any real fusses because I will not fuss, but perhaps I am not as careful of his prejudices as I might be.
